

Payal Patel

MSN, NP-PhC

Nurse Practitioner

Payal is a Nurse Practitioner who is passionate about providing evidence-based holistic person-centered care in a collaborative primary care setting. She has experience in providing care to patients in acute inpatient hospital, long term care (Veteran Centre), alternative level care, and community-based settings.

Payal brings with her a diverse nursing experience in acute trauma patient care, post surgical care, surgical and medical oncology, orthopedic, geriatric care, palliative care, and women's health. She has a special interest in women's health, including but not limited to prenatal and postnatal care, and preventative health screening. Also, she has a special interest in care of older adults, palliative care, and chronic disease management with an interest in bringing awareness around advance care planning.

Payal completed her nursing education from University of Toronto, followed by Master of Science in Nursing in combination with Primary Care Nurse Practitioner from York University. She went on to successfully complete certification in chronic disease and symptoms optimization in care of older adults and pressure injuries and complex surgical wounds from University of Toronto.

In addition to English, Payal is fluent in Gujarati, Hindi, Urdu, and Punjabi.

